Winston of Los Angeles a Winner a Wholesale Scale.

Broad Jamps, Bicycle Races, Hurdles, Tug-of-War, Mile Rup, Mile Walk,

The Los Angeles Athletic Club held its fourth annual field day at the Sixth-street Base-ball grounds yesterday afternoon.
The games were well patronized, many ladies being among the spectators.
Through some misunderstanding the many agers of the grounds, after letting them to the Athletic Club for the day, assumed to have control of and charge extra for admis-sion to the grand stand. This proceeding sion to the grand stand. This proceeding provoked some severe criticism, and, perhaps, justly so, for ladies attending such exhibitions should be comfortably cared for without extra charge. The events were all well contested, and, in point of time, some excellent records were made. J. W. Winston of the Los Angeles Athletic Club carried off the polin by winning these secretaries. ston of the Los Angeles Athletic Club car-ried off the palm by winning three separate events—the running high jump, the 120-yard hurdle and the running broad jump. The delay occasioned by the meontrol-able crowd of small boys who insisted upon rowding inside the circle, prevented the carrying out of the entire programme, as darkness appeared before the completion of the fixed events. Following were the sports:

NO. 1-100-YARD DASIL.

The starters were R. Bettner, Riverside; C. E. Patrick, Los Angeles; M. D. Bnckner, Los Angeles; W. Kingslow, Los Angeles; W. E. Johns, Los Angeles; W. Kingslow, Los Angeles; W. E. Johns, Los Angeles Athletic Club.

Starter Clark sent them off very evenly, and when they had reached fifty yards Bettner forged ahead a few feat, closely pushed by Patrick, and increasing his lead to the end finished a winner by four yards; Patrick second, Buckner third, and the other in the order as entered. Time, 11 seconds.

No. 2—RUNNING HIGH JUMP.

This event brought forth four combetitors who seemed to be in prime

Though having only two entries, this was the closest and prettiest race of the day. M. C. Spencer and J. W. Muston, both of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, started even and jumped the ten hurdles like one man. In no part of the race till after crossing the last hurdle were they separted by one foot. After jumping the last hurdle and striking the ground at the same moment, Spencer stumbled and Muston hit the tape about two feet in advance, in the fast time of 22 seconds. NO. 5-120-YARD HURDLE NO. 6—THREE HEATS, HALF-MILE BICYCLE

No. 6—THREE HEATS, HALF-MILE BICYCLE.

This was exciting to the finish. W. S.
Wing, D. L. Burke and O. C. Smith, of the Los Angeles Wheelmen, and J. P. Perseval, of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, were the four who came to stay. Burke assumed the lead in the first heat, but gave way to the ponderous working of Wing, who cantered home an easy winner. Burke, second, Smith taird and Percival last.
Time, 1:57.

In the second heat it was decided to start the men two abreast, with the second pair eighteen feet in the rear, which distance was to be allowed at the finish to the two men that had occupied the rear rank.

Wing and Burke fought it out for, the first two laps, when Percival challenged the leader and pushed him hard, Wing crossing the line only three feet in advance of Percival, who, with the eighteen feetallowance was given the heat. Time, 1:53.

The third heat was practically a match race between Wing and Percival, who fought it out every inch of the ground to the finish, Percival lasting the longer, crossed the line a winner by ten feet, Wing second, Burke thad and Smith fourth.
Through some mistake no time was taken on the last heat, though it was undoubtpdly run in better time than the two former.

Mysterious Disappearance of Two Needful Witnesses.

Facts About That Coal Oil Coa, and That Spring Wagon—Witts and Hattle Rant Last of light — A Detre-tive's Work.

It will be remembered by readers of True. Trues that the true story as to how Dr. C. N. Harlan met his terrible fate on the evening of October 6th was first told in these columns on the 13th of November, over a month after the shooting. The story in brief was that Harlan was shot at Majones's gun grove, on Iron street, in the city, during a lover's quarrel between blasself and Hattle Woolsteen, who is now confined in the County Jall awaiting trief. fined in the County Jail awaiting t Almost immediately after the shooting buried the pistol and Harlan's watch u Almost immediately after the shooting she buried the pistol and Harlan's watch under buried the pistol and hastened back to Mrs. Coakley's, 514 South Fort street, where she and Minnle had a room. Minnie's lower was present, and after a hurried consultation they decided to take the remains in a spring wagon to the Barbey barn, near Compton, and burn it, which was done, the body being placed on a straw-pile and saturated with coal oil. The identity of Minnie's lower was shrouded in mystery at that time, but The Times never gives my when it gets a clew; and though the authorities have 'seemed asleep in the matter, Time Times has camped on the trail of that lover, that spring wagon and that ois can ever since, and has been rewarded by some important discoveries, as the facts related below will prove. Besides the work done by its staff reporters, it has been as much experience as any officer on the coast, but whose name must be suppressed for the present for the reason that his work is not yet completed. This detective made a partial report to Time Times last uight, and a copy was delivered to the District. Attorney at once, that he might be able to take in time such steps as he might design.

A BLACK THUG.

He Chokes and Robs a Gentleman and Ecoapes.

A bold robbery fook place at 5:30 o'clock last evening on the corner of First and Los Angeles streets. A well-dressed gentleman named R. Duan was walking down First street, and when he neared Los Angeles street abig negro jumped out of a dark place and grabbed him around the neck and choked him until he came down. The negro held his throat with one hand while he ran the other hand into Dunn's pocket and dragged his pocketbook out. He then ran up Los Angeles street and disappeared. The purse contained about 445. Dunn gave the alarm as soon as he could get his breath, and several policeunen came to his assistance, but they were too late, for the negro had made good his escape.

Killed by the Cars.

Coroner Meredith last night held an inquest on the body of Henry Jessman, the man who was run over and badly mangled by freight cars on a side track of the California Southern road at 1 o'clock yesterday morning. The jury returned a verdict that the decased came to his death from injuries received by being run over by freight cars twhile lying on the track, and that no blame is attached to the railroad employés. The gevidence before the jury was to the effect that the man got drumk and lay down by the side of the track on a pile of excelsior, with his legs across the rails, and wen to see the side of the track on a pile of excelsior, with his legs across the rails, and wen to see the side of the track on a pile of excelsior, with his legs across the rails, and wen to see the side of the track on a pile of excelsior, with his legs across the rails, and wen to see the side of the track on a pile of excelsior. from Isaiah, Ixili, 7. A brief synopsis follows:

Rev. C. W. Heisler read the opening hymn, after which the lesson was read by Rev. Mr. Chichester, and Dr. Brown of the Trinity Church followed with prayer.

We are met today to express public gratitude to God for His loving kindness, especially during the past year, and to pray of forgiveness of our sins. The Messlah is represented in the text as returning from the destruction of His own and the nation's enemies. The Lord had not dealt with anyother nation as with Israel. The confession reminds us how this chosen people had rebelled and vexed God. [The speaker then drew a vivid and exhaustive picture of the manner in which God has shown His loving kindness to this Nation in bringing it safe through countiess dangers, and errowning it with unparalleled prosperity, and the enjoyment of civil and religious liberty.]

Thanksgiving day is possible. It would be impossible, for instance, that the Frenchmen could share in a Thanksgiving day of the German son account of the German victory in the battle of Sedan. Although no religious holiday in the accepted term appeals to the noblest human sentiment, gratitude, the most fragrant flowers the free soil of religion, such a day, celebrated as it is without dogmatism, gives a faint idea and a foretaste of the Messiante age, when "God will be acknowledged one and His name one." How then will we best celebrate Thanksgiving Day as American citizens? The answer is given in the following passage, Prev., xiv, 3t. "Virtue elevates a nation, and the sin of a people is their disgrace." What constitutes a nation's virtue? This problem is best solved by the sages of the Talmud, who said: The world is on three pillars—Truth, Justice and Peace. Truth first. Falsehood and hypocrisy may keep together a nation for a time, but history proves that the first storm will break into pieces such a feundation without law, no government but anarchy. In order, however, to get good laws the people and their legislators must be imbued by the spirit of truth and firm conviction. Selfshness and time-serving are foes of truth. The American people, politically the most advanced on the face of the globe, have the mission to demonstrate to the jealous and envious monarchies of Europe that honesty and truth are a better basis of a government than the so-called high diplomacy, which, after all, is only the art of deceit. This Republic must, therefore, watch that our Constitution remains unchangeable, and that church and State be forever separated. Even the semblance of an alliance of State and church would be a death-blow to the Republic.

Justice is the second pillar—justice toward the rich, justice toward the poor, without the slightest regard for creed, race or mationality. Already 4000 years ago "one law for the sojourner and the stranger" was the basis of the Jewish Government in Palestine. In monarchies where soattionality. Already 4000 years ago "one we for the sojourner and the stranger" as the basis of the Jewish Government in alestine. In monarchies where so-called obility of faith and profession of certain organs, of which the heart often knew othing, show noblity of character, manood and genius, justice is out of question, here they gave certain rights as they ive aims, but trample under foot he inalienable right of man; of such governments it cannot be said, "Virtue elevates nation." but "sin is their shame and distrace." Happy are those who live in this lepublic, and all those crities who find fault with our Republic because things are even ere not yet perfect, would do better to hank God today that they have the good ortune to be citizens of the United States famerica.

thank God today that they have the good fortune to be citizens of the United States of America.

Last, but not least, peace. Without peace material prosperity and intellectual improvement are out of the question. The wonderful growth of Southern California is due to the blessing of peace. This union service in this synagogue speaks volumes for the feeling of good will and harmony that reigns supreme in this beautiful City of the Angels.

But in giorifying peace I'do not mean the peace of the graveyard. Fleet is peace at the expense of conviction and rineiple. Those who say peace is only then possible when all men have the same opinion on all subjects, specially in religion and politics, are bigots and fanatics. The existence many political parties and religious domonstrations is a sign of life, health and trength of a nation. The prophet Zachrich exclaims: "Love ye breath and acce;" and that means at first breath and heave; a guards and iminustities of the home, the ongoing of society, the rise and fall of nations is prosperity and adversity, in life and in death. We meet today in grateful recognition of the intelligence and power and life that create, animate and control all things. We hold it to be not only the more religious, but also the more rational and scientific, view of Nature and of man that behiad, interpenetrating and in a large way directing, all there is a spirit of whom we may properly think as God, our Heavenly Father, and, amidst all the experiences of life, our unfailing friend. But, like the infinitude of time and of space, this view of things is so grand that we are not impressed by it as we are when we take it in parceis. Earnestly and somewhat critically we must look first at one and then another, and then still another feature of this grefit truth, before it can penetrate and saturate, inspire and electrify the mind and heart, before it can become the occasion of perpetual and devout thanksgiving. Way I, therefore, call your attention to our rational and religious nature and susceptibilities, as suggesting predictions and rightful incursions into God's prediminent reasons.

acter of the age in which we live as an occasion for hearty thanksgiving. We understand that all the great thinkers and actors of all the preceding ages have helped make this what it is. We know that a single link left out of the great chain of causation would have rendered impossible the concentrated life, the enriched civilization in which we luxuriate, imperfect as it still is. The fields of thought have been so increased and extended, the triumphs of genius are so manifold and so helpful, all educational facilities have been so multiplied, and they are so generally and so resolutely used, so much more stock is today required than ever before to produce a full-orbed character and personality, that the man of the period has been properly characterized as a "concentrated Methusaleh," living, learning, experiencing, enjoying and progressing more in sixty of these pregnant years than did the average man in 600 years at the time of Moseand the prophets. And it is doubtless true. What a privilege it is for a surcharged and richly germinal nature to live in the focalized light, and warmth, and fructifying influence of the last quarter of the nihoteenth century? At times one feels like closing his eyes upon the rapidlychanging panorama of startling discoveries and events, and asking himself if he comprehends or appreciates it all. We wonder, and we may well wonder, how people lived before there was a steam engine, a railroad, a telegraph, a gass works, a printing press, a morning paper, a great library or museum on the face of the earth. we may well wonder, as ours is not the same world as that into which our fathers were born.

We would not deprive the laboring may of one of his rights. God forbid. On the contrary, because the individual sphere is widening, we would aid him in the legitimate assertion and vindication of all of his rights. Nevertheless, it is to be considered, and, in his impatience with present conditions, he may well consider that the sober, industrious, economical laboring man of today has comforts and luxuries, alds to personal culture and incitements to it, means of intercourse with the world, a realm of experience and a personal aim and outlook of which the average professional crown of a hundred years ago never dreamed. The tide water mark of the world has been carried up to a vasily higher level since the oldest of us were children.

We cannot, therefore, entertain for a moment the idea that by all the potentiality of His presence and spirit, God was in the darkness of the past, but that the progress, the effulgence, the glory of these latter days are so displeasing to "Him that he is retiring from the world. We firmly believe that his spirit is enlightening our gar and inspiring our men, plessing our labors and guiding our Nation. Therefore, though we glandly accept all the lessons of the past, and thank God for the blessings it brings us, yet heartily, and as an expression of our gratitude to the Giver of all, we congratulate our selves on the incomparable superiority of our day, and yet believing that evolution is

First of all, therefore, gathered in the sanctuary of the Most High for a special service of thanksgiving in song and prayer, and glad acclaim, we may gratefully remember before Him, the wonderful, wonderful nature with which He was pleased to indorse us, with all its weak nesses and imperfections, the grandest thing He ever made.

"The sun is but a spark of fire—
 A wranisent meteor in the sky:
 The soul immortal as its sire Shall never die."

would be avoided.

In almost any of our new homes, and in many of the old ones, there is room for another picture. In many a more instructed taste rejects what has become sacred from association, and may be put away with the family archives.

A good painting or engraving is a joy forever. The markets are flooded with poor ones, and the rage for decoration is a weariness to the flesh.

There are already many valuable works of art in Los Angeles and its neighborhood, and a rare opportunity will soon be afforded in a sale of some of the works of William Keith to obtain paintings of the most unquestionable merit. At least one copy of Henry Ford's superb volume of etchings, including all the old missions of California, is offered for sale in Pasadena by Mrs. Carr, for the artist-author.

It is not quite time to move for an art building, or rather for a home for the Clip Library, with its historic hall for important relies of the early life of California, an art gallery containing portraits of the early settlers connected therewith, etc.

Private art collections, however valuable, nearly always find their way into public galleries. It is never an unwise investment for a rich man to buy a good picture.

So we congratulate ourselves when we pick up an eastern paper and fead of how the mercury has already registered below zero; how the cyclones and blizzards have swept over many sections; how children must be muffled in furs, men and women hasten home to keep frem freezing. Yes, we read all this as the gentle zephyrs of June-like day waft the fragrance of the flowers through our open window, and we wield our pen with rapid strokes to tell one and all of this land of sunshine, fruit and flowers—a safe retreat from the cold of the North. The situation is just far enough inland to escape the heavy sea air, and by the time it has reached the town the breeze is reduced to a gentle zephyr, bearing on its wings life and health-giving elements.

Let the pure air uproot the seeds sown by the hand of disease; let the beautiful light of this sunny spot fill your whole being with new life and the care-ladened and weary shall "leap as the fawn" and a new lease of life will be yours. Health and happiness are the common lot of all the dwellers of this place, for here "life resmiles one long day of light." plaza. Under the fostering care of a skillful gardener it is rapidly becoming a spot of great beauty. It is a decided credit to the enterprising Orangeites. The track for a motor railroad has been laid from the Santa Fé depot, passing the plaza and out one of the beautiful avenues, connecting this town by motor communication with its sister town, Earldom, some few miles distant. Another track is about to be laid to Santa Ana, thus furnishing the convenience of rapid travel to miles distant. Another track is about to be laid to Santa Ana, thus furnishing the convenience of rapid travel to all parts of the valley.

One of the most striking features of the place is the shaded drives, and, unlike most places, these drives are quite free from dust the whole year round. The avenues and all public highways are shaded by rows of towering eucalyptus on one hand, on the other spreading pepper trees. Then, again, a dense growth of cypress or pine protects the traveler from the rays of the sun, and thus makes travel and driving delightful at all times of the day, and, on account of the foliage and shrubbery, this town rivals any place in the valley in presenting a scene of perpetual beauty.

HOTELS. The Palmyra Hotel is at present the principal hotel. It is a large and elegantly furnished house, situated a con-principal hotel. It is a large and elegantly furnished house, situated a cohvenient distance from the business center of the town, and in the midst of a spot of striking beauty; the spacious grounds are layed out in most artistic style, and the garden presents a perfect scene of beauty; so a weary traveler seated on the porch is lost in wonder and admiration, first at the beauty of Nature, then at the skill of man. The house accommodates several hundred guests, and the enterprising ewner, Mr. C. J. Culver, is at present on the way to Orange with three carloads of excursionists who intend making their homes in Orange.

A new hotel, the Rochester, is in course of construction. This ornamental structure was planned by the local architect, C. B. Bradshaw. It is a substantial three-story brick building of modern architecture, containing about 100 sleeping apartments. The people of Orange rejoice as it nears completion, for nearly enough to fill the house are waiting for accommodations. There is also a neat little hotel, Vineland Home. The proprietor, A. B. Tiffany, and his hospitable wife attend to the comforts of the guests in a most satisfactory manner, and anyone having been there once is sure to come again.

CHURCHES.

CHURCHES. There are five churches with acting astors—the Christian, Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and German, all of tist, Presbyterian and German, all of which are well attended. The new Christian Church was remodeled under a plan by C. B. Bradshaw, and reflects credit upon his excellent taste. In connection with the churches are various aid and temperance societies, all of which speak loudly of the good moral atmosphere pervading the place.

Throughout the State we find a most perfect system of public school educacation, and Orange is not an exception to the general rule. At present there is but one school, situated just at one side of the town, and accommodates several hundred scholars. The school is under the supervision of Prof. Weeks, who is ably assisted by five teachers. The people of Orange congratulate themselves in having secured the services of so competent a principal as well as the efficient assistants. The school trustees met recently to decide upon a site on which to erect a new school. The rapid growth of the place and the large number of eastern people on the way with their families, render the already crowded quarters Throughout the State we find a most

PAPER.

A neat seven-column paper, known as the Orange Tribune, is ably managed and edited by W. E. Ward, one of Orange's public-spritted, wideawake, progressive business men, who has done much, through the columns of his widely-circulated paper, to call attention to the many advantages of Orange and the surrounding valley. The paper would be a credit to a far larger place, yet the owner already sees the need of enlarging his newsy sheet.

PUBLIC LIBRARY. This thrifty place boasts of a public library of about a thousand volumes and the large number seen daily coming in and out speaks loudly of the class of people who have settled here.

PRODUCTIONS.

The soil and climate of the whole valley seem especially adapted to the growth of oranges and the cultivation of "sunny south," one becomes possessed with a delightful sense of freedom from the cares of life.

Parsons suffering from throat and lung difficulty can find no place equal to this for relief. In middle life or more advanced age the dangers of severe winter time are well known to those suffering from cardiac affections. The climate of this place is worth millions to all such sufferers. This is truly one of the favored of earth, and ere long people will flock here from 'all parts of the world to live in this genial and healthful atmosphere, fer this place, like all Southern California, is noted for its health-giving climate.

Flowers bloom the whole year, for "The leaves never die on the still blooming bowers, and the bees banquet on through the whole year of flowers."

Among the important questions in Southern California is the water ques-Southern California is the water question. Santa Ana Valley has the advantage of the largest stream of water in Southern California. It flows clear through the whole valley, and furnishes an abundant supply of pure, clear mountain water for all purposes, irrigation included; no fear of a scarcity of water when surface water gives out, for having its source in the mountains, it is quite safe to say it is a never-failing source of supply.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MISCELLANEOUS. Orange seems to be blessed with particular advantages beside those already mentioned. It is a necessity in most new places to go to some large city when in need of building plans, but in Orange such a waste of time is saved by the presence of a local architect. C. B. Bradshaw, who has an office at the lower end of the main street, where he can be found morning, noon and night, giving his time and thought to the arrangement of modern designs to meet the demands of an ever increasing influx of people desiring to build elegant homes. Already are found monuments of his skill, genius and artistic taste, for which he was so noted throughout the East. The Christian Church has been remodeled after his design, and from the dilapidated structure of the past comes the modern and truly handsome structure which now graces one of the principal avenues. The new hotel, which is most imposing in appearance, as well as numerous dwellings which adorn the town, have been constructed after his artistic designs, and while he is giving his time to planning beauty for the exterior, in the same building is the art studio of his talented and accomplished wife, who is not so selfish as to bury her talents within the walls of her own home, but is doing all she can to assist others in beautifying their homes.

The walls of her studio are lined with beautiful and original paintings, the production of her fertile brain and skillful hand. Many of the ladies of Orange are taking advantage of her presence, and at present her time is fully occupied by a large class of students.

The Great Fight in Atlanta

The columns of the Atlanta Constitution present from day to day a spec-tacle which is probably unparalleled in the history of American journalism.

An election will be held in Atlanta today (Friday, Nov. 25th.) to decide under the local option law, whether that city shall be for the next two years a prohibition or a license town. The fight between the Wets and the Drys is already very hot. A great many eminent citizens have plunged into the contest, and among them are Col. Evan P. Hewell and Mr. Henry W. Grady, both of the Constitution.

The New York Sun describes the sit-

The New York Sun describes the situation in the se words:

The singular thing about the situation is that these two distinguished journalists and particles in the controversy, and that each has been trying to drag the newspaper after him. Hot as is the conflict in town at large, the general temperature of Atlanta must be frigid compared with that now prevailing in the Constitution office.

Col. Howell is against prohibition. He has taken the stump for the Wets, and has delivered speeches and written letters full of convirting statistics showing the failure of the sysem in Maine and elsewhere. He pronounces the law on which the citizens of Fulton county are to vote next week to fullous the proposition, wherever it has been tried, has brought a train of evil, perbeen to the system of evilvat and oppressive. In his opinion prohibition, wherever it has been tried, has brought a train of evil, perounty.

In the same number of the Constitution that contains Col. Howell's masterly argument against prohibition there appears a speech on the other side by that eloquent young champion of the Drys, Mr. Henry W. Grady. The absence of statistics in Mr. Grady's speech is more than supplied by the abundance of pyrotechnic rhetoric.

America's purchase of the FrenchAmerican claim was Uncle Sam's first real-estate transaction; and, in point of acreage, it was the most gigantic deal the world ever knew. Jefferson obtained early knowledge that Spain had ceded her possessions west of the Mississippi to France. At that time the latter country actually owned more territory in North America than the engage in a war with England. Bona parte wanted money, and negotiations for the purchase of the Louisiana territory commenced.

Jefferson was President; he was a strict constructionist, and, construed strictly or otherwise, the Constitution contained nothing to warrant the purchase of territory or the appropriation of money for such purposes.

While Jefferson was astrict constructionist, he was also a patriot and a statesman, and his strict-construction principles gave way to the supreme interest of self-defense.

Complete control of the mouth of the Mississippi was neces-sary to the safety of the Republic. The Americans had just concluded a seven-years' struggle with England. France and England were about to engage in war; if, by the fortunes of war or treaty stipulations, England should obtain possession of New Orleans, she would have control of the Mississippi, and in the vast and ill-defined regi known as Louisiana, could establish far greater colonial possessions than she had lost to the Americans.

So, to the mind of Jefferson, th strict constructionist, the constructive rights of self-defense became paramount to the Constitution and supple presented on the question of the acqui-restated on the question of the acquisition of territory.

Thus opened up Uncle Sam's realestate deal. Bonaparte demanded f.1,000,000,000. Livingston offered f.50,000,000. Finally, after the usual amount of diplomatic huckstering, a bargain was struck, and our Government acquired the French interest in America for the sum of $15,000,000. ferson he is said to have exclaimed: "I sent the commission to purchase the site of a town and they have bought a

A DETROIT Anarchist, Goldwater by name, returned to that city from Chicago with the story that Mrs. Parsons, wife of the executed criminal, was put in a cell and stripped naked by the police for the purpose of being searched for bombs. Investigation proved that the disrobing process was conducted by the matron of the prison. The Anarchist falsehood was easily disposed of.

THE Republicans of Los Angeles can elect their candidates at the coming municipal election if they will but select their best men and then work for their success at the polls. It is essential that this prime fact be borne in mind at the Republican caucuses this even-ing. peroration of young Mr. Grady's speech, apparently printed—will it be believed?—as an adver/sement in the columns of the newspaper with which Mr. Grady's name is indissolubly connected:

"The best reforms on this earth come through waste and storm, and doubt and suspicion; the sun itself, when it rises on each day, wastes the radiance of the moon and blots the starlight from the skies, but only to unlock the earth from the clasp of night and plant the stars anew in the opening flowers. Behind that sun, as behind this movement, we may be sure there stands the Lord God Almighty, master and maker of this universe, from whose hands the spheres are rolled in their orbits, and whose voice has been the harmony of this world since the morning stars sang together. During the past year he has received 1000 communications from individuals, in which he was abused, condemned and asked to resign. The papers were full of abuse, threats of impeachment were made and threats of impeachment were made and threats of withdrawal from the order were freely indulged in. He has never had any fault to find with official treatment, but believes the best service he can render the order is to step aside and fallow some other man to do the work he is trying to do. His life since taking up the cause of labor has been one constant struggle against the enemies of labor and the elements of discord. Such a life has been most exciting and has left him a legacy he never can part with, in the shape of a heart trouble which may do its work at any moment.

Wildcat Land Schemes

The Los Angeles Times, in commenting upon the "Manchester Colony Free Gift;" which it has been the means of exposing as a fraud on the several occassions on which it has been foisted upon the public in various places, discents with several occassions on which it has been foisted upon the public in various places, discants with great severity upon the practice of unscrupulous real estate fakirs who attempt to swindle the unsophisticated by placing upon the market worthless tracts of barren land, advertised in glowing terms as prosperous townsites, earthly paradises, etc. This evil it energetically denounces as follows: "The man who locates a townsite in the heart of a swamp or sandwash; in the bed and track of a winter torrent, or, as in the case of the Manchester fake, on the rocky declivity of a bald mountain, and swamp or sandwash; in the bed and track of a winter torrent, or, as in the case of the Manchester fake, on the rocky declivity of a bald mountain, and who foists the same upon the people of distant localities as 'lovely spots of lovely Los Angeles,' is a public enemy. An enemy to the people he deceives, and an enemy to the future welfare of Los Angeles county. It is the duty of every honest man to expose such schemes, and to squelch such schemers." This is as it should be. The more influential journals in this section expose the arrant humbugs who by their swindling operations bring discredit upon our whole community, the better it will be for Southern California. San Bernardino county, be it said to its credit, has so far had to complain of few attempts to carry on dishonest land schemes within its borders, and when such have been tried here their promoters have been promptly sat down upon both by the press and people. There are a number of new towns located within the circuit of our peerless valley; but not one has received the countenance of our citizens whose development was not the result of natural advantages of location, and the inauguration of substantial improvements. We are sorry we cannot say as much for the neighboring counties of Los Angeles and San Diego, and hope the foregoing pertenent suggestion of The Times may be promptly acted upon by the proper parties in the chief centers of both these districts.

OUR NEIGHBORS.

Monday by the morning train Eariham received another invoice of strangers, and more are on the way.

The large bell on the new Friends'Church at Eariham has called the devout to their house of worship every day for some time. We have not learned the results of the revival meetings held there, but no doubt good was accomplished.

Mrs. Maria B. Coney, aged over 84 years, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dr. Trusdell, mear Orange, Monday, the 21st. The funeral took place at the residence of Dr. Trusdell the following day. Mrs. Coney's death resulted from an injury which she received while walking in the yard Saturday evening, when by a misstep she fell, breaking her thigh near the hip. The bone was set and everything possible done for her comfort, but owing to her advanced age the shock was so great that it was impossible for her to survive it.

Rev. G. F. Bovard visited Orange and held quarterly meeting last Sunday. The church were very glad to welcome their former pastor in his new capacity as presiding elder.

Last Saturday a young German whose name we did not learn, while driving near the railroad with a load of brick, was thrown by the sudden starting of the horses from the wagon and instantly killed, the wheels passing over his head and crushing it.

The Question of Domestic Help. Los Angeles, Nov. 23,—[To the Edito The Question of Domestic Help.

Los Angeles, Nov. 23.—[To the Editor of The Times.] I saw in your columns lately some advertisements which set me thinking. We all know the difficulty of getting and keeping good servants. Very indifferent ones we often get for $25 and $30 a month. A plan used in England would work very well here, I think—that of employing "lady help." Perhaps the term "lady help" may require some explanation. It simply means a cultivated and refined woman, generally the daughter or widow of a clergyman or other professional man who has, by the death of husband or father, been thrown upon her own resources, and, not having the exact knowledge now required of teachers, enters the home of another where she relieves an overburdened mother of many of her most arduous duties. She is treated as a friend and equal. Heavy work she is not expected to do, and her salary is a matter of agreement between her and her employer.

Now, there are in this city many intelligent and refined women who are unable to find employment, but who would ghadly take such a position as I have described, if sure of being treated with consideration. It remains for us busy wives and nothers to take advantage of this state of things and either by advertisement or in some other way put curselves into communication with these parties.

I am convinced we would in many cases way put curserves have these parties.

I am convinced we would in many cases not only secure refined companionship for our children, a trusty friend for ourselves, but would also be of help to another, which is certainly a pleasant state of affairs all around.

Faro Games to Quit Till After January 1st.

Ever since the police sensation has been on the boards the big gambling games have rested on their oars. In other words, the knights of the green cloth have not opened their doors to visitors. Last night it was learned on good authority that several of the largest dealers will close up their places "for keeps" and leave the city. Two of "for keeps" and leave the city. I wo of them will go to San Diego today, and will not return until after the 1st of January. It is not known whether the stampede will extend to all of the faro games or not, but a general request has been made that all games be closed down until that time, and the gamblers seem to be anxious to obey the mandate.

Last evening the First Congregational Church was filled to overflowing with ladies and gentlemen, who united in a Thanksgiving service, it being the fourth day of ing service, it being the fourth day of the extension of the week of prayer. Rev. C S. Uzzell showed his usual power as a leader. The music was led by E. G. Northrup, assisted by the association orchestra. Several arose for prayer, and a large number went away converted.

The Sun-Kissed Land Worth Think

The Sun-Kissed Land Worth Thinking About.

[Arizona Citizen.]

From all the northern and eastern States and Canada, news comes that "winter has set in," and with it the usual statements about the many poor people and their wants. There has been more than the average number of failures among manufacturing and mercantile establishments, and hence a large number of industrious and worthy people are out of employment and therefore of means to meet the expenses required for food, extra fuel and clothing during the long winter. It is indeed sad to contemplate the sufferings of the poor of the section named, for several months to come. More than the ordinary causes combine to make this winter a cheerless one for the poor. Now that the piereing blasts of winter are on, the opportunities to labor are less than usual. The manufacturers, for want of cash markets, must reduce production, and this diminishes the demand for coal, the various metals, lumber, etc. The papers of the large cities are reminding charitable people and organizations of the work before them, showing that while one portion of the people suffer, another must sacrifice.

How pleasant it is to turn from such a dark picture to Arizona, where the climate is mild, food cheap, and if any healthy people are suffering for the want of food or clothing, or both, they are entitled to neither help or sympathy. We dare say that the people generally, of Arizona, have as cheerful prospects ahead as any equal number in the United States.

A Russian Girl Marries bixteen Men.

A Russian Girl Marries bixteen Men. (Court Journal.)

A Russian young lady has been condemned to life-long prison for marrying sixteen husbands. She is a curiosity, and ought to have been let off. When her lawyer went to see her in prison after the trial she assured him of her gratitude, and asked him to accept as a souvenir a gold watch and chain, which she placed on the table before him. He at once recognized it as his own. She had picked his pocket and presented him with his own watch.

We start this new town off with the following advantages: It is only four miles from the city.

The Southern Pacific Railroad runs through the tract, and depot and ide tracks will be built at once. The Los Angeles and Glendale Motor Railroad, now about completed, uns within 600 feet of this townsite.

63 The Pasadena Boulevard, now an assured fact, is laid out immediately through the center of the tract.

"How about robbing the stage in Death Valley!" asked Rose significantly.
McDowell threw up both hands. His hard, brutal face turned ashen as death, and for seconds he could not find a word. Then he gasped: "Where the h——I did you get that? There ain't but one person alive that could have told you."
"Oh, yes! Maggie McCurdy is the only noman alive that can keep a secret!" replied the exasperated wife.

"On, yes! Maggie McCurdy is the only acoman altorthat can keep a secret!" replied the exasperated wife.

"Curse her." hissed McDowell, with a volley of horrible profanity. "That settles her hash!" and he left the house.

A few days before, he had received a letter from Maggie, asking him to find employment for her in San Bernardino. Rosa had read this letter, but she did not see the letter he received from Maggie next day after his discovery that he had been betrayed.

That night Rosa had a male visitor, and when he lett he asked her to go buggy-ridwhen he left he asked her to go buggy-rid-ing the next afternoon. Billy was in the next room, so she said, "no, I am married, I can't go." "Well," said the man, "you're a pretty good girt, and I'll send the buggy around anyhow, so you can go riding alone."

When he had gone, she told Billy of the buggy, and asked him to go with her. "No," said he, roughly, "I'll go by my-

In a few minutes McDowell returned, took his coat, and departed, not missing the razor.

At4 p.m. the buggy was sent around to the house, and Rosa went out to drive, alone. She drove slowly down toward Colton, and just at dusk turned around to go home. "Hold on there!" came a voice, which she recognized as Billy's, and in a moment he came up on horseback. "Here, you get on the horse, and give me the buggy," he said curtly, and she obeyed without a word. "Now, you keep behind me, and follow wherever I go. You hear?" McDowell turned the horse again and proceeded to Colton, going directly to the depot. The train soon arrived, and Rosa, from a little distance, saw a closely-veiled woman get off the cars and get into the carriage with McDowell. Rosa had no idea who it was, and when McDowell drove off, ordering her to follow, she obeyed in silence. Instead of turning back toward san Bernardina and home, McDowell took the Riverside road—then a lonely, dangerous highway, very different from what it is now. Marveling much, but daring to ask no questions, the unfortunate Rose followed. Once she rode up close behind the huggy, hoping to learn hy voice who was the veiled companion of her husband, that Billy ordered her to keep her distance, with a bloody threat to murder her if she intruded again.

And so the strange and unholy procession moved slowly on. In front, in the buggy, Billy McDowell, the pimp and highwayman, with his quondam unistress, of whom has now knew that she had told the story of his crimes—for the veiled, woman was Maggie McCurdy, or, by her married name, Maggie O'Brien, and behind, on horse-tack, the young slawe wife.

It was a dark night—fit setting for the evil passions and the evil deeds that it harbored in its gloomy bosom. A few unload was the hills, McDowell stopped the buggy, "You ride abead," said he to Rose, "a little ways, and don't you come hack until I call you." She was in the habit of dopying him like a dog; and she rode abead

Later Developments.
Last night this same detective succeeded in getting Witts to visit Hattle Woolsteen at the County Jail. Witts was positive that Hattle would prove conclusively to every-one that he had nothing to do with the burning of the barn and Harlan's corpse. one that he had nothing to do with the burning of the barn and Harian's corpse. Witts was accompanied by the quick-witted detective, and the meeting was closely watched. Hattle was greatly surprised when Jailer Russel announced that "Mr. Witts" was down stairs and wished to see her. The officers who were present at the meeting say Hattle's face turned very pale. Her father happened to be present at the time, and the conversation between har and Witts was very guarded, although Witts was very drunk, and Hattle seemed to be afraid that he would give the whole thing away. He told her he was being hounded to death by reporters and detectives, and seemed to be very anxious to convince her that he had not talked too much. He spoke of Minnie as his sweetheart, and Hattle seemed to be very anxious to make her believe that he had attempted to see her a number of times, but that he had been refused admittance to the jail; while the facts are that he never attempted to see her. He also said he had not seen Minnie, and did not even know where she lives at the present for the front door Witts said to the detective, who was present in the room with them: "There were too many people present for me to talk to Hattle." WITTS' SAY. Witts was seen by a Times reporter last night, and said he hoped he would be ar-rested at once, as he claims to have five rested at once, as he claims to have five or six witnesses who can swear that he was not with Minnie on the evening of October 6th. He is positive that he can clear himself in ten minutes. He stated that he had heard that "Billie" Merritt, who had charge of the Government teams, on the night of the 6th of October, had a team out that night until a late hour, but he does not know where he went to. He never saw Merritt, he says, but he is of the opinion that that gentieman is a "tail, slim blonde," and answers the description of the man who was with Hattle when she drove up to Mrs. Ferguson's house on the afternoon of the shooting and tried to borrow a olstol. He if very positive about his own innocence, however, and says he hopes he will be arrested at once, so that he may stop all the talk about his being mixed up in the affair. As already noted, The Times put the District Attorney in possession of all these facts at once, and it is probable that some arrests will be made today.

A DISAPPEARANCE.

A DISAPPEARANCE. ent after Witts and Hattie's father left the jail the detective and a. TIMES man hurried after them, but they had disappeared. Witts was very drunk and inclined to be talkative, but after Father Woolsteen got hold of him he could not be found again last night, and consequently had no chance to indulge his propensity to talk about the case.

Y. M. C. A. Dinner.

Ladies Auxiliary gave a most pleas-ntertainment yesterday afternoon to embers of the Young Men's Christian ant entertalnment yesterday afternoon to the members of the Young Men's Christian Association who were away from home. All forenoon the busy hands of the fair ones were preparing the sumptuous repast for the young men's Thanksgiving dinner at the First Presbyteriau Church parlors. When at 3 o'clock the young men arrived the tables were loaded to overflowing with roast turkey, ranberry sauce, ham, celery, green corn, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, pies, cakes, fruits, nuts and scores of other viands. Flowers of every variety filled the air with perfume. To each young man was given a button-hole rose bonquet.

After thanks had been given those present sang a Thanksgiving song written for the occasion by Miss Belie Overman. When the bounteous repast had been fully discussed, each member present gave a short speech, telling his name, where he was from, what he had done and what were his anticipations. Of the sixty-three members present twenty-seven States and countries were represented. Canada had the largest representation with nine present and Illinois second with eight sons. After the boys had told a great variety of experiences, there was an original poem read by Mrs. J. D. Burch, the president of the Ladies Aux-lilary, whose Indefatigable zeal and kindness had made this such a pleasant occasion. Casion.

The following was written to be sung at the dinner:

ODE TO LOS ANGELES.

Los Angeles, 'tis of thee,'
Fair city near the sea,
Of thee we sing.
Land of the "'49-er,"
Than which there is no finer,
From moneyed man to miner.
Her praises ring.

Los Angeles is her name, And world-wide is her fame. And world-well-deserved.

And well-deserved.

Long may her name be bright,
And known for doing right,
With naught to blur or blight,
Thro' time preserved.

Perhaps the Father's love Has called that son above, With Him to dwell. He, in the mansions fair Our God hath builded there, Where cometh naught of car Would say, "All's well."

Bid sorrow in our hearts
No bitter, cruel darts
Or polson leave;
But from our hearts we'll raise,
As grateful incense, praise
To God thro' all our days,
Nor will to grieve.

Thanksgiving to the Lord,
Thanks living thro' His word,
Our lives actend.
Long may the Y.M.C.A.,
Hold rightful, potent sway
Until the judgment-day
It's work shall end.

We thank those women true, Who spread for me and you This bountcous board. Long may their lives be dear, To labor year by year, At last the plaudit hear, From our common Lord.

We thank those women true,
Who spread for me and you
This bounteous board.
Long may their lives be dear,
At last the plaudit hear,
Prom our common Lord.

Sheriff Kays and Jailer Russell gave the prisoners at the County Jail a big feed yesterday afternoon. A first-class Thanksgiving dinner was spread, and before sitting down to the table the boys let off three rousing cheers for Kays and Russell. After dinner was over they were treated to cigais all around, and they spent the evening dancing and having a jolly good time.

A Masterplece.

A beautiful and unique specimen of the silversuiths' art is on exhibition in the show-window of the Diamond House, on Main street. It is a large, solid-silver of quartz. The ladle is of silver, and is a very handsome piece of work, with a branch of gold tuñas, studded with turquoise, in the handle. There are also two stands for classes, of silver, the bottoms of which are laid with American and Mexican dollars. The punch bowl is surmounted by a solid gold figure of a miner, with pick over his shoulder, about six inches in height. This handsome service was made to order, is of solid gold and silver, and cost, complete, $6000. The specimens of gold and silver quartz on it are among the finest specimens ever seen anywhere.

Catch on to the Boom Before it is Too Late.

ov. Dr. Richard L. Gartsell's endship for Father McGlynn uses Him to Ir duce Bishop ore to Interfere.

The rumor that Bishop Moore of Florida has made an attempt to have the McGlynn case reopened at Rome, while it cannot be absolutely verified, proves on examination to be quite likely. The Rev. Dr. Richard L. Burtsell's friendship for Dr. McGlynn and his cause are well known, and Bishop Moore, who is an old friend of Father Burtsell, has been consulting with him, presumably about the form of an application to Rome for a reopening of McGlynn's case. It would not be surprising if such an effort were soon made, if not in the Bishop's name, at least with his censent.

The Catholic authorities here are utterly indifferent about the matter, as they believe that interference at this late day will be regarded as impertinence, and those who undertake it, whether prelate or priest, will only get snubbed for their pains. They do not understand how an appeal can be made with some propriety; but he is not only rebellious to Archbishop Corrigan, but to the propaganda, the Pope and the Church, having spoken of them in the most contemptuous terms. If it had been found that facts were suppressed in the presentation of the Archbishop's side, or errors committed in his procedure against the priest, that might furnish ground for a reopening, but the most clever theologians in the Church—those of the propaganda—discover nothing of the kind after a deliberate examination.

The sign lifeant passage in the Pope's letter to Archbishop Corrigan referring to "timely measures for the correction of the rebellious," will, it is believed, soon have a practical illustration. The Archbishop is now expecting the promised instructions from Rome on this point. A prelate higher in place and esteem than Bishop Moore—Cardinal Gibbons—had great difficulty in obtaining a suspension of Rome's judgment in the case of the Knights of Labor because of the Pope's impression that they were in some way connected with McGlynn. If Bishop Moore or any other prelate or priest should write to Rome to beg a reopening of the case it is believed that he will be answer cardinal Mazella, the eminent Jesuit, who has been instructed by the Pope with the examination of Henry George's books and theories, has advised that, from motives of policy, it would not be well to give them the prominence of a condemnation or netice. As a fight by some of Dr. McGlynn's clerical adherents, on the ground of George's theories not having been formally condemned seems imminent, the authorities here will likely urge an expression of opinion from Rome upon them. ### HIS PEDIGREE.

HIS PEDIGREE.

How Mark Twain Satisfied His Father-in-law.

[From the Philadelphis Press.]

As every one knows, Mr. Clemens first met his beautiful wife while on the famous voyage of the Quaker City, and he pursued his acquaintance so closely after their return that at last the young lady's papa one day called the ardent and devoted Mark into his study and said after some preamble:

"Mr. Clemens, I have something to say to you which bears upon a subject of grave importance, at least to me and mine. You have been coming here for some time, and your manners leave no doubt in my mind as to your object. Now, my daughter's welfare is very dear to me, and before I can admit you to her society on the footing of a sultor to her hand, I would like to know something more than I do about you, your antecedents, etc. Stop a minute! You must remember that a man may be a 'good fellow' and a pleasant companion on a voyage, and all that, but when it is a question as grave as this, a wise father tries to take every precaution before allowing his daughter's affections to become engaged, and I ask of you, as a gentleman, that you shall give me the names of some of your ou, as a gentleman, that you shall dive me the names of some of your riends in California, to whom I may write and make such inquiries as I may leem necessary, that is, if you still dedire our friendship."

deem necessary, that is, if you still desire our friendship."

It was now Mark Twain's turn.
"Sir." said he, bowing profoundly, as became a young man who respects his hoped-for-father-in-law, "your sentiments are in every way correct. I approve of them myself, and hasten to add that you have not been mistaken in my sentiments toward your daughter, who, I may tell you candidly, seems to me to be the most perfect of her sex, and I honor your solicitation for her welfare. I am not only perfectly willing to give you reference, but am only too glad to have an opportunity to do so, which my natural modesty would have prevented me from offering. Therefore permit me to give you the names of a few of my friends. I will write them down. First is Lieut.-Gen. John McCombe, Alexander Badlam, Gen. They will all lie for me just as I would for them under like circumstances."

This conclusion broke the old man all up and he never asked more reference nor wrote to those gentlemen. Those who know this quartette will appreciate the joke.
